

Automation Unplugged: Pinto's Perspectives, Pointers & Prognostications

By Jim Pinto

Table of Contents

About the Author	vii
Preface	ix
Introduction	xiii

Section 1 Major Automation Companies—
The Good, The Bad and The Ugly	2
Introduction: John Berra	3
The Urge to Merge	9
Siemens—American manager’s view	15
Emerson—strong management drives performance	21
Honeywell Industrial Systems—The GE-Honeywell fiasco	25
Aggressive French giant—Schneider Electric	29
Invensys in decline	33
Whither Rockwell Automation	39
The ABB Blahs	43
Yokogawa exemplifies Japanese automation companies	47
Companies in Trouble	51
The second tier—tomorrow’s leaders	55
Section 2 Marketing, Sales and Distribution Perspectives	60
Introduction: Frank Williams	61
The Changing Face of Automation	67
Old dead-ends, new directions	71
Products vs Services	73
Product Development Speed in the Internet Age	77
Marketing Speed in the Internet Age	81
Why is Industrial Automation Declining?	85
Industrial Automation eBiz	89
Disintermediation—Distribution and Sales Channels	91
Disintermediation—The Customer Perspective	95
Disintermediation—The Manufacturers Perspective	99
Competing in a Global Environment	103
Relationship management	107
Never, Never be the Lowest Bidder	109
Section 3 The Future of Automation Technology—Gee Whiz! ..	112
Introduction: Bud Keyes	113
Instrumentation & Control on the Frontiers of a
New Millennium	117
New technology, new approaches are needed	125
The Technology Laws	129
Distributed & Grid Computing	133
The Pervasive Internet	137
Intelligent Connected Appliances	141

Wireless sensor networks	145
Networked, Intelligent I/O—
The Truly Distributed Control Revolution	147
Fully automated factories	155
Nanotech & self-organizing systems.	157
Intelligent robots will be everywhere	161
Stephen Wolfram’s “New Science”	165
Section 4 Industrial Networks—This Bus is for You	168
Introduction : Dick Caro.	169
Fieldbus—A Neutral Instrumentation Vendor’s Perspective . . .	173
How do I catch the Fieldbus?	179
The Law of Open Systems Confusion	183
The Dichotomy of Open Standards	187
Section 5 Pinto’s Industrial Poetry	190
Introduction: Greg Hale	191
Where have all the Players gone?	193
The Fieldbus Raven	195
Open Saysa Me, Closed Saysa You	196
The Fieldbus Quadrille	197
Microsoft Takes Over Fieldbus	198
The 8-part Fieldbus Voting Fiasco.	199
Net Du Jour	200
You are Rich Brother William	201
Saint Bill	202
Afterword	205